Murder in the Bistro (The Maggie Newberry Mysteries Book 9) Susan Kiernan-Lewis

Is there a connection between the cat found napping in the flour barrel of the newest bistro and the dead American chef in the meat freezer?

When it comes to Maggie Newberry and the cranky villagers of St-Buvar, how could there not be?

Once more back in Provence, Maggie finds her hands full with village politics ratcheting up to nuclear level, her BFF back on her living room couch—this time with a snotty teenager in tow—and a full blown riot developing over the brand new American-owned bistro.

When the fractious American chef ends up dead, Maggie will need to find out who killed her—and fast—before the chef's killer decides that two dead Americans in the village are better than one.
