With Internet access growing worldwide and mobile devices numbering in the billions, we have new, innovative ways to connect with people around the planet. Phil Cooke summarized this new perspective very well when he stated, “I believe it’s time to shift from primarily thinking about missions in terms of geographical boundaries, and start thinking in terms of digital boundaries.” We have a digital missionary field full of always-connected people that we can access and minister to from any Internet-connected device. Instead of using traditional missionaries, raising funds, and flying them to remote places to minister the Gospel, we can put digital devices in the hands of digital missionaries and show them how to connect with people on social networks, web networks, mobile networks, and numerous digital platforms at anytime from anywhere.

The time is coming to look at Social Media and other digital platforms as a place to connect with current believers and reach others with the life-changing message that is the Gospel. This digital missionary field is growing, and the only thing holding us back is the lack of knowledge on how to fully utilize this technology to reach God’s people. But don’t fret, friends. Once you are done with this book, you will have more than enough information on how to reach millions online via The iChurch Method.
