My mother always told me not to talk to strangers...but this time, how could I possibly resist?

“Chelsea Davies, good morning. You are in a great deal of danger. I strongly advise you to call into work sick today. In fact, it would be best if you remained exactly where you are in your apartment for the next thirty minutes.”

Pfft...and you thought your Monday was bad? Imagine waking up to a call like this?

“Someone wants to kill you. They think you know something that they’d rather keep hidden.”

And why should I believe a word you're saying?

“It doesn’t matter at the end of the day whether you know it or not—the person after you thinks that you do, because you have the information.”

Within no time, there's a man at my door here to whisk me away to safety...and he's drop dead gorgeous.

Do I trust him, grab my stuff and run?

Or is he as much of a threat as the people that he claims are after me?
