This story, although fictional, is based upon an actual incident that took place in a high school class in Palo Alto, California. A history class is about to learn a fearful lesson that none will ever forget. As the class studies World War II, Ben Ross's students cannot seem to comprehend how the German nation blindly followed the lead of Adolf Hitler. So Mr. Ross creates an experimental movement called The Wave. What begins in a single classroom, however, quickly gathers momentum. Before the week is out, The Wave's motto, "Strength Through Discipline, Strength Through Community, Strength Through Action," sweeps the entire school. Only two students recognize The Wave for what it really is and set out to stop the movement before it is too late. But will they succeed or is history destined to repeat itself?
